Joseph Lesovitz is a partner in the Valuation and Forensic Services Practice. With over 15 years of experience, he specializes in calculating damages in complex commercial litigation and in providing financial consulting and forensic accounting services to attorneys, public and private corporations, insurance companies, and governmental agencies. Joe has been qualified as an expert and presented testimony in depositions and trials in federal court, state court, and arbitration.

EXPERIENCE

Prior to joining Citrin Cooperman, Joe held senior positions at leading global accounting and professional services firms, and at a global investment management firm.

Joe has provided consulting and litigation services for cases involving complex commercial damages, lost profits analysis, intellectual property infringements, business valuations, economic damage calculations, and fraud investigations. His consulting and litigation services extend to clients in many industries, including pharmaceutical, healthcare, financial services, technology, manufacturing, real estate, retail, telecommunications, and insurance.

HONORS & AWARDS

Joe is the recipient of an American Institute of Certified Public Accounts 2016 Standing Ovation Award for contributions to the areas of forensic accounting and business valuation.

PRESENTATIONS & PUBLICATIONS

Joe is a frequent speaker for law firms and other professional organizations. He has presented seminars on topics including lost profits damages, the effective use of financial experts, and intellectual property damages.
