INDUSTRIES

Construction

“Our clients' businesses are like buildings. They need a strong foundation to be able to grow and expand. We're here to help them build that financial foundation.”

Salvatore Leone is an audit and tax partner with over 15 years of experience providing assurance, tax, and advisory services. He has a specialized focus serving clients in the construction industry, as well as closely held and medium-sized businesses in the manufacturing, staffing, wholesale, and distribution industries.

EXPERIENCE

Sal is also the co-chair of the firm's Construction Committee. He has a wealth of experience advising clients in the construction sector. With a deep expertise in overall profitability enhancement and job profitability analysis, he provides management with strategies for saving money and boosting efficiency on construction jobs. His expertise extends to areas of expense minimization, reducing tax liabilities, and year-end tax projections and planning. With a long-standing network of contacts, he is also able to help clients with financing and bonding negotiations.

For his corporate clients, Sal provides a combination of technical acumen and insight, taking pride in asking the right questions and responding proactively. He counsels clients on an array of tax and audit services and strategies, such as profit enhancement, understanding financial covenants, and negotiating lines of credit and renewals.

Prior to joining Citrin Cooperman, Sal held roles at Weinick Sanders Leventhal, which joined Citrin Cooperman in 2005.

PRESENTATIONS & PUBLICATIONS

Sal is the author of various articles, which have been published in Construction Business Owners Magazine. As a panelist and featured speaker, his engagements have included the NY/NJ Port Authority and Columbia University's Construction Certificate/Mentorship Program.
