“My passion for technology has allowed me to develop innovative solutions that exceed client expectations.”

Sean Williams is a director with over 20 years of experience in the technology industry.

EXPERIENCE

Among his many strengths, Sean has a particular gift for seeing the big picture in client environments. Capitalizing on this skill, Sean's work focuses on strategic planning for client environments and managing environmental upgrades. He also provides support for varied environments and end users. Sean's role requires him to stay up-to-date with both current and emerging technologies; he feels that this is both the most challenging, and the most enjoyable, aspect of working in the IT industry.

Within the Citrin Cooperman team, Sean shares his knowledge and experience freely. He especially values the interaction and collaboration with his colleagues, a diverse group who share the common goals and interest of providing excellent service for clients.

Sean was a director at RCS, which joined Citrin Cooperman in 2015. He joined RCS in 2004, after an extended collaboration with RCS during his 10 years as co-founder and partner of Ikon Technologies.
