Privately-held companies are finding it increasingly difficult to keep up with financial reporting requirements, while also keeping overhead costs at a competitive level. As the business climate continues to shift, it's critical for these companies to work with an advisor who understands their unique challenges and opportunities, and who can help provide increased comfort and transparency to shareholders and management. We have the knowledge, tools, and expertise to satisfy your reporting requirements and provide business insight.

How Citrin Cooperman Can Help

For our private company clients, the financial statement audit is the foundation for us to build a complete understanding of where the business stands, and provides us with critical information to develop ongoing communications with our clients on ways we can enhance their operations and shareholder value. As a result of our tight staff-to-partner ratio of 4:1 and our low turnover percentages year-over-year, we are able to provide our clients with a dedicated team that knows and understands their unique business operations and systems. In addition, our partners are consultants first, which translates to a valuable resource that can anticipate every need, deliver proactive ideas, and provide the personal, hands-on attention required to help our clients achieve their goals.
