more defensible mindset and create reports that consistently withstand the most intense scrutiny from the IRS, auditors, judges, and opposing counsel. As a result, we are often called to testify in court as expert witnesses throughout the United States. Whether it is a purchase price allocation prepared in accordance with ASC 805, a valuation that meets the IRS's Adequate Disclosure Requirements or a litigation worthy valuation we provide the comfort of a defensible and reliable analysis.

We conduct valuations of the following:

- Operating businesses
- Purchase Price Allocations and related intangibles
- Early-stage companies
- Common and preferred stock, options, warrants, rights, and other derivatives
- Carried interests, profit interests, stock appreciation rights (SARS), restricted stock units (RSUs), and phantom stock
- General and limited partnership interests
- Intellectual property such as patents, copyrights, and trade names/marks/secrets
- Intangible assets such as contracts, customer relationships, core technologies, software, and non-compete agreements
- Royalty assets such as rights and licenses, including music catalogs
- Debt instruments such as fixed income, hybrids, and convertible debt
- Professional licenses and degrees

Aside from performing independent and objective valuations for a range of consulting purposes including corporate planning and restructuring, we also conduct valuations in connection with litigation, compliance, and consulting.
